In-service Certificate in English Language Teaching (ICELT)

If you are already teaching English and want to improve your skills in your current working context, the In-service Certificate in English Language Teaching (ICELT) can be an important stepping stone in your career.

ICELT is ideal if you are already teaching English in a specific context – e.g. teaching adults or young learners in the private sector, teaching within a university environment, teaching primary or secondary school learners. This qualification can help you to deepen your knowledge and develop your ability to reflect on and improve your teaching.

Course programmes are designed to reflect your specific needs and working context. The main aim is to develop your skills in the following areas:

- language awareness and language use in the classroom
- planning, teaching and evaluation
- assessment and evaluation.

Where can I attend an ICELT course?

ITESL Educational Consultancy is offering a 150hs blended course starting in mid April.
